

Abandonment Of Cars In Favor Of Busses On Scioto Valley Certain

Officials of Company Refuse To Deny or Confirm Although Action is Sure

Final abandonment of the Scioto Valley Traction Co.'s lines between this city and Columbus and Chillicothe and between Columbus and Lancaster, with the substitution of a modern bus transportation system to serve this territory, will be considered at a special meeting of stockholders of the traction company in Columbus Friday. A definite announcement of this meeting has not been made but it is being rumored in Columbus financial circles.

Leading stockholders of the traction company have operated a bus line for some time to the points now served by the traction company, and service has been steadily diverted to the bus system now operating on an established schedule.

If stockholders of the traction vote to suspend its operation, approval of the abandonment of the road will be asked of the public utilities commission. To obtain permission to carry out the suspension of service the company would show that the bus line which several of the stockholders and officials now control, and which the Scioto Valley Traction Co., is expected to acquire, will serve adequately the territory which has been reached by the traction company. The utilities commission requires that a traction line to cease operation must show that the region in which it operates under franchise is to receive "equivalent service" before it grants suspension.

The Scioto Valley Traction Co. now controls a short line railroad which carries coal from the Norfolk and Western Railroad to the Columbus Railway, Power & Light Co.'s power station near Pickaway Station. This line would continue operation if the project under consideration is adopted, it was believed.

Russell Johnson, president and general manager of the traction line, refused to confirm or deny that the project will be taken up at the special meeting of stockholders. Other directors of the company stated that various proposals looking toward the abandonment of the railroad have been entertained in various years but none has been acted on. Directors of the company are Johnson, Gilbert Fuller, Gen. Chauncey B. Baker, Frank Davis, J. R. Sturm, New York, and Henry Peters, Lancaster.

The present bonded indebtedness of the traction company is $1,400,000 6 per cent first mortgage bonds and $445,000 notes due next year. If the company ceases operation, sale of the equipment and junking of the large amount of iron rails and other materials will be ordered to assist in the retirement of outstanding obligations of the company.

The Scioto Valley Traction Co. was one of the earliest and most efficiently constructed traction lines in the county and its roadbed has been described as "solid as the Pennsylvania Railroad." It began operation about a quarter of a century ago with two cars, one of which shortly burned, necessitating refinancing of the company to carry out the necessary expenditure for new equipment. The roadbed follows the winding hills of Pickaway, Ross and Fairfield counties, and travel over its lines when first established was deemed by many a thrilling trip. It also has been declared by many to have been as solid in its capital structure as in its physical construction, until the advent of rapid motor transportation in recent years.

NEW TARIFF RATES BEING USED TODAY

Officials Say Law Will Not Raise Cost of Living, Others Think Otherwise.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—When customs houses at all American ports of entry opened this morning, collectors placed into operation the schedules and administrative features of the tariff act of 1930. The new rates, which were signed by President Hoover yesterday, became the law of the land at 12:01 A. M. today.

PRIVATE FEARS
While publicly officials asserted that the new law would not appreciably increase the cost of living or bring about retaliatory action by foreign powers, many experts privately feared both higher commodity costs and injury to the country's foreign trade which already has fallen off $800,000,000 this year, as compared with the first five months of 1929.

The treasury instructed customs collectors to put the new law into effect with the minimum of interference to business and industry. Officials said that with the exception of a few minor items it has been well known for weeks that the new rate would be and that therefore importers had plenty of time to get their goods into the country at the old rates.

Experts predicted that the new tariff would result in a decrease in the volume of customs collections. This will not be felt seriously, during the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, but it was anticipated that 1931 customs collections would fall far below the $602,000,000 estimated when the last budget was sent to congress.

The same estimate was made for the 1930 fiscal year, but due to world-wide depression in business collections will not exceed $550,000,000 judging from figures up to today.

WORK UNDER LAW
Customs experts were working on the new regulations based upon the tariff law. Already collectors have been informed as to many of the administrative features which were not in dispute but it will be 60 days or more before the revised instructions have been completed.

Several administrative features have been liberalized. These include the drawback on sugar, marking of imported packages, restoration to the treasury of certain duties of adjusting claims of shippers, and relief of customs collectors for responsibility for safe delivery of imports.

NEW YORK, June 18.—A great "welcome home" reception awaits Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who will return in triumph to New York tomorrow from his sixteen months' expedition in the frozen wastes of the antarctic. It promises to be the most pompous pageant since Colonel Lindbergh's return from his epochal Paris flight three years ago.

Elaborate plans for the city's greeting to the navy officer who has flown over two poles and the Atlantic were completed today as Admiral Byrd's flagship, the City of New York, and the steamer Eleanor Bolling, the supply ship of the antarctic expedition, neared New York harbor. They were less than 100 miles southwest of Ambrose Light this morning.

Three vessels, instead of the solitary Macom, will go down the harbor tomorrow morning to meet the Byrd expedition ships at quarantine. A parade of navy and coast guard vessels, yachts and tugs, all dolled up in flags and bunting, will convey them up the harbor to the battery while shipping in the bay whistles a salute.

A column of 3,000 troops will parade Byrd and his companions up lower Broadway to City Hall where they will be officially welcomed. Mayor James J. Walker will present Admiral Byrd with a painting and the City's medal of valor. Medals will be given to all members of the expedition.

Result of New Jersey Vote, Naming Morrow Discloses Dry Feeling

PILOT FOUND, PARTY HUNTS 7 TOLEDOANS

Discovery In Water of Dead
Man, Removes Theory of Ransom-seekers.

TOLEDO, O., June 18.—Spurred by the finding of one body and articles of clothing of others of the party of eight prominent Toledoans, who disappeared Saturday while enroute to an annual Elk's outing at Pelee Island in Lake Erie, rescue parties today intensified their search for the remaining victims.

THAT OF PILOT

The recovered body, identified as that of John Hipcock, pilot of the speedboat from which the party vanished, was found in the lake near West Sister Island by Coast Guard Cutter No. 173. Its discovery indicated almost beyond doubt that the Toledoans were victims of a lake disaster and dissipated a previous theory that the eight men, most of whom were wealthy and active in northern Ohio politics, were captured and held as hostages by lake pirates on an island.

Some mystery still surrounded the tragedy, however, since coroner, Frank C. Kretz, who examined Hipcock's body declared that the man died of exposure.

Several articles of clothing were found in the lake yesterday by searchers. Among them was a shirt, bearing initials "H. W. N." A coat believed to have been one worn by John Myers, one of the men, and a light blue tie. The shirt which, was tied to a boat cushion was believed to have belonged to Herbert W. Nauts.

7 STILL LOST

The seven men who were still unaccounted for are: Charles H. Nauts, Republican leader and internal revenue collector for the Toledo district; Herbert Nauts, his son; Franklin E. Jones, former elections board official; Henry Hainbush, assistant Lucas county engineer; Frank Miller, former city water commissioner, and John Myers, wealthy businessman.

Airplanes and all available boats and yachts continued the search today for the men still missing.

At 10 a. m. today nearly 15 hours had elapsed since Schlee and Brock took off from San Diego for Jacksonville at 5:11 p. m., Pacific Coast time (8:11 Eastern Standard time.)

At 10 a. m. officials of the local airport had received no word of the progress of the flight.

Former Ambassador's Man
Over Nearest Opponent
Nears 200,000

BY GEORGE E. HOLMES
NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—A veritable tidal wave of anti-prohibition sentiment rolled through Jersey today, carrying on its foaming crest the perhaps fatal political figure of Dwight W. Morrow. By a margin almost unbearably large and upon the single issue of opposing prohibition, Ambassador Morrow has won the Republican senatorial nomination hands down.

GREAT LANDSLIDE

He carried yesterday's primary by landslide proportions. In so doing he defeated, decisively, a flood of three other candidates—Congressman Franklin W. Fort, who dry and backed desperately by the anti-saloon league; ex-governor Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, a recent convert to the wet cause, and James A. Kelly, a little known candidate who was the wettest of all.

This morning it appeared that Morrow's victory would be in excess of 200,000 votes, which is unprecedented in Jersey primary. Fort running a very poor second, closely pursued by Frelinghuysen.

With the returns now being compiled at 10:30 o'clock this morning, Morrow's lead was rapidly increasing.

Figures for 2920 of the state's 3304 districts gave:

Morrow, 338,818

Fort, 95,074

Frelinghuysen, 41,232

WETS ASSURED

In November, Ambassador Morrow will be opposed by Alexander Simpson, a "winging wet" Democrat, who was unsupported for party nomination.

Thus the wet victory in Jersey is complete, after eleven years of the "wettest state in the Union" Jersey confirmed the decision in yesterday's primary.

It is believed that the wet states have always been the stronghold of the anti-prohibition movement in the country.

The dry leaders themselves concede as much. During the campaign they derisively dubbed the "new Moses" of the wet.

LEAVES EFFECT
There was a good deal of speculation today as to the probable effect of the Jersey verdict upon the Republican organizations in other populous eastern states. In New York and Massachusetts the prohibition issue is acute in the party, with influential leaders commencing thorough going wetness in the state platforms. Undoubtedly the wet movement in these organizations will be accelerated by the vote in New Jersey.

The issue in Jersey was clearly cut. In his campaigning over the state, which included nearly every county, Ambassador Morrow talked of but two things—prohibition and the London Naval treaty, which he helped to frame. Or prohibition he took the position that the eighteenth amendment be repealed, and in its stead an amendment enacted which would restore to the states the power to deal with the control of liquor.

The program will start with assembling of the children at the state house in Columbus this morning. Buckeye Stages has provided huge buses to transport Circleville children, while children from other homes will travel in and C line buses, and Pickaway cars.

Result of New Jersey Vote, Naming Morrow, Discloses Dry Feeling

PILOT FOUND, PARTY HUNTS 7 TOLEDOANS

Discovery In Water of Dead
Man, Removes Theory of Ransom-seekers.

TOLEDO, O., June 18—Spurred by the finding of one body and articles of clothing of others of the party of eight prominent Toledoans, who disappeared Saturday while enroute to an annual Elk's outing at Pelee Island in Lake Erie, rescue parties today intensified their search for the remaining victims.

THAT OF PILOT

The recovered body, identified as that of John Hipcock, pilot of the speedboat from which the party vanished, was found in the lake near West Sister Island by Coast Guard Cutter No. 173. Its discovery indicated almost beyond doubt that the Toledoans were victims of a lake disaster and dissipated a previous theory that the eight men, most of whom were wealthy and active in northern Ohio politics, were captured and held as hostages by lake pirates on an island. Some mystery still surrounded the tragedy, however, since coroner Frank C. Kretz, who examined Hipcock's body declared that the man died of exposure.

Several articles of clothing were found in the lake yesterday by searchers. Among them was a shirt, bearing initials "H. W. N." A coat believed to have been one worn by John Myers, one of the men, and a light blue tie. The shirt which, was tied to a boat cushion was believed to have belonged to Herbert W. Nauts.

7 STILL LOST

The seven men who were still unaccounted for are: Charles H. Nauts, Republican leader and internal revenue collector for the Toledo district; Herbert Nauts, his son; Franklin B. Jones, former elections board official; Henry Hainbush, assistant Lucas county engineer; Frank Miller, former city water commissioner, and John Myers, wealthy business man.

Airplanes and all available boats and yachts continued the search today for the men still missing.

West-East Record.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 18.—Edward F. Schlee and William Brock, intrepid Detroit aviators, flying back across the continent after setting a new record for the west-bound crossing from Jacksonville to San Diego, Cal., were overdue here today.

The fliers have failed to equal on the west-east flight their record of 13 hours and 55 minutes on the east-west trip yesterday. At 10 a. m., today nearly 15 hours had elapsed since Schlee and Brock took off from San Diego for Jacksonville at 5:11 p. m., Pacific Coast time (8:11 Eastern Standard time).

At 10 a. m., officials of the local airport had received no word of the progress of the flight.

Boosters From Village To Be

The Ashville 45-piece band under the leadership of Fred J. Hines, which has been visiting various towns throughout the county on a ballyhoo booming up the big Fourth of July celebration at Ashville will arrive in Circleville Friday evening and promises Circleville residents with a two hour concert of band music.

The band will be accompanied by two or three hundred Ashville boosters and will attempt to arouse plenty of spirit in the hearts of the local folks, and will persuade them to attend the big celebration at Ashville.

The celebration last year was one of the most successful that has ever been held in Pickaway-co. and this year will be bigger and better as amusements and free acts will be more extensive and a very fine exclusive line of fire works will be featured in the evening with two recreation games in the afternoon.

The band carries five local music makers. They are: Orwell Barr, Charles Brown, Waldo Hilyard, Charles Plum and Thomas Stofor. Among the cities and villages the boosters have visited and intend to visit are: Ringgold, Tilton, Amanda, Stoutsville, Kingston, Laurelville, Hallsville, Adelphi, Royalton, Canal Winchester, Lithopolis and Groveport.

Mayor B. T. Hedges asks all spirited-minded citizens of the city to come out and help boost.

British Prince Is Entertained By Lewis' Band

Adding another honor to those already heaped high upon the head of Circleville's favorite son, Ted Lewis, was the pleasure and privilege of entertaining the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne of Great Britain.

Former Ambassador's Margie
Over Nearest Opponent
Nears 200,000

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES
NEWARK, N. J., June 18—A veritable tidal wave of anti-prohibition sentiment rolled through Jersey today, carrying on its foaming crest the perhaps fateful political figure of Dwight W. Morrow. By a margin almost unbelievably large and upon the single issue of opposing prohibition, Ambassador Morrow has won the Republican senatorial nomination hands down.

GREAT LANDSLIDE
He carried yesterday's primary by landslide proportions. In so doing he defeated, decisively, a field of three other candidates—Congressman Franklin W. Fort, bone dry and backed desperately by the anti-saloon league; Ex-senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, a recent convert to the wet cause, and John A. Kelly, a little known candidate, who was the wettest of all.

This morning it appeared that Morrow's victory would be in excess of 200,000 votes, which is unprecedented in Jersey primaries. For running a very poor second, closely pursued by Frelinghuysen. With the returns nine-tenths compiled at 10:30 o'clock this morning, Morrow's lead was steadily increasing.

Figures for 2920 of the state's 3304 districts gave:
Morrow, 335,815
Fort, 95,074
Frelinghuysen, 41,233.

WETS ASSURED
In November, Ambassador Morrow will be opposed by Alexander Simpson, a "wringing wet" Democrat, who was unopposed for his party nomination.

Thus the wet victory in New Jersey is complete, after cited as "the wettest state in the union," Jersey confirmed the designation in yesterday's primary in stentorian tones. The Democrats of the states have always been wet, and now the Republicans have joined them.

Inevitable, the effects of Morrow's smashing victory will be felt politically far beyond the confines of New Jersey.

During the hectic campaign that preceded yesterday's voting and much to the Ambassador's embarrassment, his enthusiastic friends were nominating him for the presidency. At any rate, whether he likes it or not, the monumental proportions of his victory automatically send Ambassador Morrow to the forefront of the anti-prohibition movement in the country. The dry leaders themselves concede as much. During the campaign they derisively dubbed him "the new Moses" of the wets.

LEAVES EFFECT
There was a good deal of speculation today as to the probable effect of the Jersey verdict upon the Republican organizations in other, populous eastern states. In New York and Massachusetts the prohibition issue is acute in the party with influential leaders counseling thorough going wetness in the state platforms. Undoubtedly the wet movement in these organizations will be accelerated by the vote in New Jersey.

The issue in Jersey was clear-cut. In his campaigning over the state, which included nearly every county, Ambassador Morrow talked of but two things—prohibition and the London Naval treaty, which he helped to frame. On prohibition he took the position that the eighteenth amendment be repealed, and in its stead an amendment enacted which would restore to the states the power to deal with the control of liquor.

The program will start with the assembling of the children at the state house in Columbus, in the morning. Buckeye Stages has provided huge buses to transport the Circleville children, while children from other homes will travel in I and C line buses, and Pioneer Stages cars.

WEEVIL
DANGEROUS

With harvest season approaching, farmers can well afford the precaution of cleaning up bins with weevil traps. Weevils are expected to be in the grain crop. All grain should be treated with weevil traps. The traps are made of wire mesh and are placed in the grain. They catch the weevils as they move through the grain. The traps are then burned or buried.

It is necessary however, to note the following precaution. First, if the grain is over three and one-half feet deep in the bin, part of the Carbon Bi Sulphide should be administered down to one-half of the depth of the stored grain. This may be accomplished by the use of a short section of down spouting and some burlap packing. Put the burlap over the end of the down spouting, insert it to the depth you desire then pour in the Carbon Bi Sulphide. The remainder of the Carbon Bi Sulphide should be placed in earthen vessels on top of the grain. Second, the treatment should be made on still days when the temperature exceeds 70 degrees F. Third, Be careful about matches or pipes while administering this treatment. Fourth, Do not treat grain which is in bins over any class of livestock until the stock has been removed.

WARN FARMER OF PAY LAW

An increasing interest in the application of the Workmen's Compensation law to farm labor is manifested by Ohio farmers, according to a communication from Edwin J. Bath, legislative department director of the Ohio Farm Bureau, to Edw. C. Rector, president of the Pickaway-co Farm Bureau.

For the benefit of interested farmers, Mr. Bath's communication explained the law briefly, with especial regard to the term "casual employment."

"The tendency," Mr. Bath said, "is to consider that the farmer who only occasionally employs extra labor to handle a crop would not be amenable to the law. Also that farmers who trade labor—that is, who help one another—would not come under it because there is no direct compensation."

"It is best to be on the safe side. Farmers should use this liability insurance even though they may have less than three employees. It is cheap. The farm-labor rate is only $2.01 per $100 of payroll. Farmers who employ three or more helpers are not only liable for compensation in the event of an accident but are subject also to dues processes of common law."

WORK DROPS
1 PER CENT

COLUMBUS, O.—After the temporary slackening of the decline in April, industrial employment in Ohio continued to decline in May but four of the chief cities showed gains over April according to the monthly report of the bureau of business research Ohio State University.

Akron, Columbus, Toledo and Youngstown had increases in industrial employment in May over April ranging from 1 to 3 per cent, the report added. But the decline in the state as a whole was 1 per cent as compared with a five-year average increase of 1 per cent. The figures were taken from reports supplied by nearly 500 industrial concerns.

The May volume of employment, the report continued, was 14 per cent less than for May 1929, and the average for the first five months of 1930 was 13 per cent less than for the similar period a year ago. Manufacturing employment in Ohio also declined 1 per cent in May from April, due, the report explained, "to employment declines in the chemicals, the machinery, the metal products, the paper and printing, and textiles groups."

The stone, clay and glass groups reported no change in May from April, and the food products, lumber and rubber products groups reported slight gains. The decline of 1 per cent was in contrast with a five-year average increase of 1 per cent.

DETROIT.—Three alleged members of a band of terrorists, which was formerly captained by Fred Burke, Benton Harbor policeman slayer and Michigan's notorious "Gentleman crook," are being held by police today and 11 accomplices are being sought.

Commissioner of Police Thomas C. Wilcox, says that the arrests will clear up 16 kidnappings during the past two years here.

Those held are Harry Hallissey, 33, alleged "blind pig" operator who is now the master mind of the ring, according to police, Stanley Delong, 37, and Ben Rubenstein, 38. Delong's wife was arrested with her husband but police said she would probably be released sometime today.

The alleged gang is said to have been recruited by Fred Burke. He dropped from sight after he shot and killed a Benton Harbor policeman as the climax to an argument over a traffic ticket.

Police say that the arrests are the first of a gangland round-up here and that they may lead to a sensational underworld expose.

IN WEEVIL DANGEROUS

With harvest season approaching, away from farmers can well afford the precaution of cleaning up bins when they expect to use storing the new grain crop. All grain and dust should be removed in cleaning up these grain bins. The different types of bin weevil which exact large tolls on grain products each year, may be most effectively combated by preparing grain storage and moving all grain wastes in which weevil may be harbored. After cleaning the bins, spraying bins with cold tar preparation formaldehyde, in most instances it put to route any of the weevil used in the cleaning operation. However, following the storage of grain, farmers should examine grain bins regularly, to determine weevil damage. This may be noted through heating of the grain in the bins. The most effective method of combating grain weevil when once in stored grain, is use Carbon Bi-Sulphide at the rate of 6 pounds per 1000 cubic feet of bin space or at the rate of one pound for each 40 bushels of grain. Open spaces in the grain bin should be plugged with sacks, canvas or stripped with waste lumber to avoid loss of the gas in preparing for the treatment of stored grain.

It is necessary however, to note the following precaution: First, If the grain is over three and one-half feet deep in the bin, part of the Carbon Bi Sulphide should be administered down to one-half of the depth of the stored grain. This may be accomplished by the use of a short section of down spouting and some burlap packing. Third, Be careful about matches or pipes while administering this treatment. Fourth, Do not treat grain which is in bins over any class of livestock, until the stock has been removed.

Akron, Columbus, Toledo and Youngstown had increases in industrial employment in May over April ranging from 1 to 3 per cent, the report added. But the decline in the state as a whole was 1 per cent as compared with a five-year average increase of 1 per cent. The figures were taken from reports supplied by nearly 900 industrial concerns.

The May volume of employment, the report continued, was 14 per cent less than for May, 1929, and the average for the first five months of 1930 was 13 per cent less than for the similar period a year ago. Manufacturing employment in Ohio also declined 1 per cent in May from April, due, the report explained, "to employment declines in the chemicals, the machinery, the metal products, the paper and printing, and textiles groups."

The stone, clay and glass groups reported no change in May from April, and the food products, lumber and rubber products groups reported slight gains. The decline of 1 per cent was in contrast with a five-year average increase of 1 per cent.

ILLINOIS WATERWAY STUMPS ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS

BY WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
WASHINGTON. —Administration leaders were looking forward today to an adjournment of Congress next week even though the $136,000,000 Rivers and Harbors bill has struck a snag in a senate dispute over the Illinois waterway.

Every item in the bill was agreed to by the Senate, except one providing $7,500,000 for developing the Illinois waterway. Over this question, senators from the upper lake state battled the Illinois delegation on the amount of water to be diverted into the channel.

In the background, friends of the world war veteran awaited an opportunity to pass a new compensation bill. This bill threatened to develop controversy but its advocates claimed sufficient votes to enact it.

With both bills passed, and senate amendments agreed by the house, Congress will be ready to adjourn. Friends of both bills however have agreed to hold Congress in session until President Hoover has acted on them, since he might pocket-veto both measures if Congress were not in session. This program would keep Congress here for ten days after passage of the pension bill, unless the president signed it sooner.

river. This controversy must be ironed out.

Another element of contention was raised by Senator Couzens (R) of Mich., who moved to strike from a bill a provision directing the government to repay several localities for money expended locally on waterway surveys. Couzens charged this provision would establish a precedent that would cost the government hundreds of millions of dollars.

If these matters can be settled, the bill will pass. It will carry projects for 40 different states and consequently commands the support of an overwhelming majority in both branches of congress.

HEIGHTS TORN BY HURRICANE

CLEVELAND.—Smashed garages, un-roofed houses and up-rooted trees were strewn about the village of Maple Heights, as a grim reminder of a near tragedy resulting from a freak twister late yesterday in which two children narrowly escaped death or injury and scores of others were imperiled.

The twister, which broke out suddenly and disappeared just as quickly, resembled a severe thunder squall. It cut a disastrous path across the Heights' village and nearly reached tragic proportions at the home of Anton Kozler where it picked up a playhouse in which two children had been playing an instant, and lifted it 30 feet into the air and dropped it with a crash.

The children were carried from the playhouse just before the twister struck by Kozler, who feared the threatening aspects of the darkened sky and rushing wind. Several garages were picked up by the freak wind and badly damaged when let loose and dropped back to earth. Roofs were ripped from many houses and flung into a gully running nearby the village. Damages by the twister were estimated at several thousands of dollars.

Judging from the fact that these miniature golf courses may expect yet to see the tour of Europe laid out by the lots and patronized by the travelers.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVE

Mrs. E. Gebbard, 301 W. 14th St., Ky., says, "My husband and I were slaves to laxatives, continually giving ourselves with something to relieve our bowels. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit, even gave our children laxatives in form. Little did we realize that we were aggravating and not reaching the constipation. Headaches, indigestion and constipation, still on our minds. Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would free us from the habit, stir up the bile, which, acting as an antiseptic, keeps the bowels from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming, and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this. Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 25c and 50c packages."

BETTER TOBACCOS . . . "NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD"

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

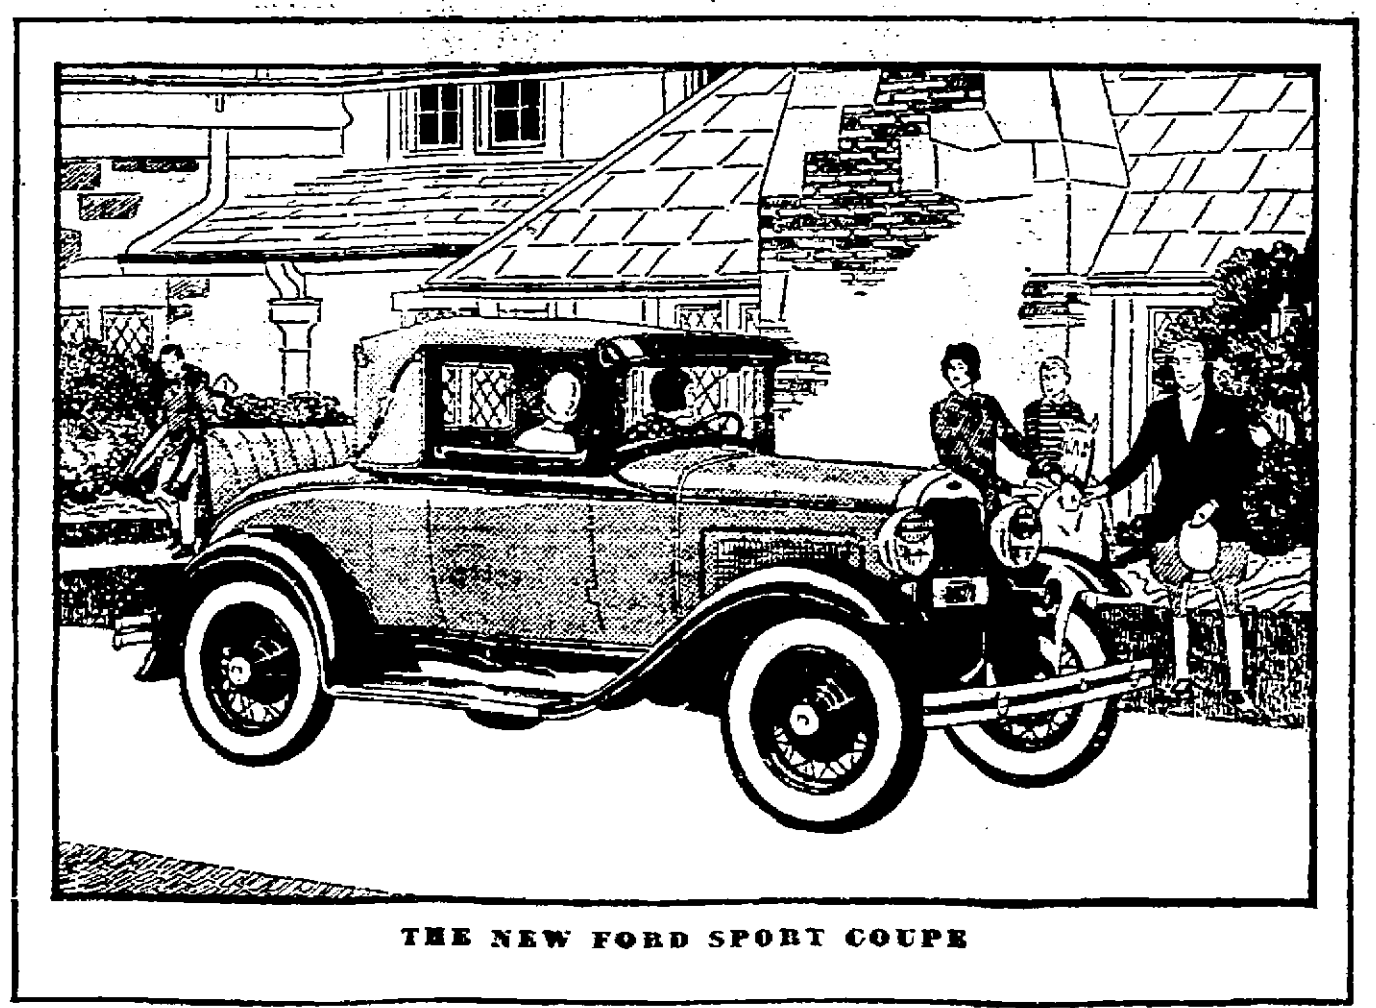

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury in an automobile collision.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

THE NEW FORD SPORT COUPE

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a coast test in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen to Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

This program would keep Congress here for ten days after passage of the pension bill, unless the president signed it sooner.

The Rivers and Harbors bill met easy sailing in the senate until the Illinois waterway project was reached. Among the senate amendments adopted were, a provision authorizing $2,500,000 expenditure each year for federal operation of the Erie and Oswego Canals, a $15,000,000 program for developing the upper Missouri River from Kansas City to Sioux City, Ia., and a $7,500,000 project for developing the Mississippi from Illinois to Minneapolis.

The New York State project was approved only after considerable debate. It was pointed out the canal system had cost that state $216,000,000 and that the tonnage had been reduced from 5,000,000 to 1,000,000 tons in recent years. It was argued that the government would lose money. In the end, it was approved only as a barge line, so its operation will not interfere with the St. Lawrence waterway project.

The dispute over the Illinois waterway may take several days to settle. The upper lake states demand inclusion of a provision, limiting the water diversion eventually to only 1,500 cubic feet per second. The bill, as reported, would allow all the water necessary to develop a "commercially useful waterway" in the Illinois river. This controversy must be ironed out.

Another element of contention was raised by Senator Couzens (R) of Mich., who moved to strike from a bill a provision directing the government to repay several localities for money expended locally on waterway surveys. Couzens charged this provision would establish a precedent that would cost the government hundreds of millions of dollars.

DEMOCRACY'S MESSENGER

Much is made of the assassination of Alfred Lingle, the Chicago reporter, who was doubtless a good reporter but whom few people even in Chicago had ever heard of before. Unprecedented rewards are offered for the capture of the murderer. Chicago authorities are stirred up as they have not been for years. The newspapers of the country "play it big." The whole country is interested.

Is this because the newspapers are giving excessive publicity to a story which especially concerns them? Or because it affords a good excuse for a supreme effort to crush Chicago gangsters? There is doubtless a factor more influential than these, which is felt by almost every newspaper reader whether consciously or not.

Reporters are a special class and in many ways a privileged class, because they represent in modern life what official messengers were in olden times.

Messengers, whether on Olympus or among men, were held sacred. If they were slain, their death was avenged. The ancients felt it had to be so, to preserve the sanctity of communication.

Reporters are the modern messengers. They serve newspaper readers, who are the modern monarchs. They make mistakes, but on the whole they serve their masters well. But for them, the public could not know the truth about a thousand important things. Without them this complex modern society could not exist. Without their work, as Thomas Jefferson said long ago, free government could not function.

So their professional sanctity must be maintained, their death in line of duty must be avenged.

MORE JOB SEEKERS

If the market for white-collar jobs seems a little duller during the summer, it must be because nearly half a million college graduates are dumped on the market this month. The June crop takes a little time to place and temporarily clutters up some of the employment bureaus.

On the whole, though, this is said to be one of the easiest groups to place in our economic system. Many students in every graduating class have jobs lined up for them. They are spoken for in far greater numbers than they used to be. There is a special demand now for those who have specialized in certain lines, particularly the technical school men. Merchants, manufacturers and other business men are often on the lookout for likely young men and women. Legal firms comb law schools for promising students. Educational institutions are searching for teachers. And so it goes.

There is a premium on education. College training, which used to be regarded among "practical men" as a sort of liability is now almost universally recognized as an asset.

RACIAL SUPERIORITY

There is considerable truth in the obstacles named in the report of the Simon commission which has studied the possibilities of granting self-government to India at the present time. It is true that India's 300,000,000 population is divided by castes and religious differences, making cooperation virtually impossible without a long period of education of the masses and the development of a national spirit. Without the British, India would have no military force to preserve order and home rule.

On the other hand there remains the ironic fact that the British government presumes to patronize and look after a vast populace who it regards as incapable of governing itself, in spite of the fact that India was a civilized nation when Britons were still living in caves.

The white races of the world entertain notions of superiority over the dark-skinned race, which may or may not be true. Somehow the former groups have got the upper hand physically and materially. The others are in the position of being unable to assert their rights without permission of their oppressors or benefactors, as the case may be.

Logic, economics, politics, and the social adjustments of the Western World seem to favor the superior groups, but there are moments when a philosopher or scientist of human history wonders whether it will be so for long. If it should turn out in the great scheme of things that the white races were not, after all, created to rule the world there would be a rather tremendous cosmic joke on us.

BETTY didn't know of Nell's penchant for Rod, but she did know that the bride-maid had wanted to be maid of honor, and she secretly exulted over the situation.

She was about to propose that they telephone for Mrs. Pennington when Pearl came to her and said:

"Miss Betty, ma'am, some while ago, Mr. Pennington, he telephoned to know was his wife here. And I told him she wasn't."

"How long ago, Pearl?"

"Lak 'bout half an hour, maybe, maybe not so long, maybe a quarter-hour."

"That's funny. The Penningtons went home together, didn't they, Aunt Judy?"

"Yes, Betty. I said good-by to them as they left the house."

"Well, then," and Burton Lamb sized up the situation. "Emily took Mrs. Pennington with her over to the hospital to see the new baby, and they've no idea how the time has gone by!"

"That's Emily all over!" declared Nell Harding. "Of course, Burt, you're right. How can anybody be so thoughtless and so careless of other people's conveniences?"

"Well," Mr. Spinks said decidedly, "either we put this thing over or we don't. I suggest we go right straight bang through with it, and we'll just have time if we begin at once, and then you folks can coach Miss Duane and Mrs. Pennington in their parts afterward. Like as they'll come in while we're at it. Hey, Mr. Sayre, come along here. Mr. Garner, you get up here in the bower, will you?"

Burton Lamb went back to the lounge to tell Rodney of the decision, and to his surprise the odorous bridegroom refused to budge.

"But Rod, you must. And, too, Emily and Mrs. Pennington will know their parts without rehearsal. But you want. You don't want to come a cropper at the big show, and you sure will, if you don't get onto the quirks right here and now."

"How will you tell me just what to do, and I'll do such a stunner that I can't catch on. And if I make a mistake here, they'll forgive a clumsy bridegroom."

Rod settled back in the corner of the sofa and lit another cigarette.

"You're a brute," Lamb told him. "I haven't time to argue with you, but as I'm your best man, I've got to get you through somehow. I suggest, all right, I'll do your part myself, and then I can coach you. For Heaven's sake, come on. You must shoot over to the drawing-room as fast as you can. You may be in time."

"I'll be right in time," said the bridegroom, and he could think of no other words to say.

Emily Duane said to Aunt Judy, "Please stand up here and give me the pattern of how to be a bride-maid, will you?"

"Yes, Miss Duane. Now, Miss Duane, stand on your left foot, ready to answer the question, 'How do you feel?' I'll be right in time, now, Rod."

The men were all stood up. Lamb, meeting on being bridegroom and saying he could not stay, and the best man also.

happens, the minister, the whole party went off in peals of laughter.

Even this did not bring Rodney Sayre to the scene.

He was thinking deeply. He well knew Emily's wilful ways, her sudden yielding to a whim, but he didn't think she would forget or ignore the rehearsal of their wedding.

He was not at all angry at her, or even annoyed, but he couldn't quite understand.

Well, at any rate, he could obey orders. She had said, "Don't budge from that sofa until I come back," and nothing short of an irresistible force would make him budge.

Nor was this merely a dogged or stubborn obedience to orders. It was only that Rod loved his Emily so truly and so deeply that he wanted to do as she asked him, now and always.

letter-perfect in her own part and Nell exulted in any contempts that threatened the perfect performance of Emily's wedding pageant.

Wildly, Spinks looked around. No servants could be seen—their peeping had been strictly forbidden—with the exception of Pearl, always a privileged character.

Catching sight of a human being, the Rehearsal grabbed at her as the only possible last straw, and pushed her into place at Aunt Judy's side.

"Never mind the matron of honor," he shouted, dancing about in an agony of haste and excitement. "You've got to give the bride away, ain't you? And you've got to have a bride to give away! Well, this is it!"

Food Poisoning—A Hot Weather Menace

—Be Cautious About Your Eating

ADVISES DR. COPELAND

Care in Selecting and Cooking Foodstuffs in Summer is Essential, for Potomines are Virulent Then, Says Authority, Suggesting First-Aid Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

FOR the most part, the foods we eat are wholesome and free from any contaminating influences. We need not worry about them. Government regulations and careful inspection of all foodstuffs are so strictly carried out in the United States today that most foods come to us in splendid condition.

But because some foods contain deadly bacteria, or potomines, it is incumbent upon us to buy only of reliable dealers. We must learn what are the earmarks of good meats, as well as other foods. We should know their origin, as well as the signs of their freshness and fitness for consumption.

The trouble is that in some instances there is nothing about the food we buy, either before or after it is cooked, to indicate that it is unsafe to eat. Usually we know either by its taste or smell whether the meat or other food is good to eat. Sometimes these bacterial poisons are so resistant to heat that neither roasting nor boiling can destroy them.

Potomine poisoning may come from canned meats, or other canned goods. This rarely occurs now, since government inspection is rigidly enforced. There is probably no animal tissue that decomposes and forms potomines as quickly as fish. When taken from its natural element, the water, fish die and decompose very rapidly. Bacteria of a deadly nature form very rapidly in the tissues. Such poisons form much more quickly in the heat than in the cold. Therefore it is very necessary to keep all fish on ice in order to have them fresh and safe for eating.

Apart from the influence of food, there are some poisons that develop in the human body. This is true in diseases like typhus fever, Asiatic cholera, or lockjaw.

Potomine poisoning varies very much in its severity and character. Its severity depends upon the virulence of the poison, and one's resistance to disease.

The attack may appear immediately after eating the food, or hours or even days may pass before the ill effects are felt. In the latter case the attack is usually most severe, for all the time poisons are at work in the body.

One of the first symptoms of food poisoning is intense itching or prickling of the skin. It is apt to grow in intensity until it is almost unbearable. Soon there are cramps in the intestines, nausea, and vomiting. Fever, headache, dizziness and weak heart action follow.

While waiting for the doctor, the patient should be kept warm in bed. The bowels should be kept open. It is very necessary to eliminate the poisons in the system as soon as possible and to this end the patient should drink tepid water to which soda has been added. Vomiting may be induced in this way, or by sticking the finger as far back in the throat as possible, the food will be ejected.

Care in the selection and cooking of your foods will keep you from disease. Let us not trust to good luck.

DEMOCRACY'S MESSENGER

Much is made of the assassination of Alfred Lingie, the Chicago reporter, who was doubtless a good reporter but whom few people even in Chicago had ever heard of before. Unprecedented rewards are offered for the capture of the murderer. Chicago authorities are stirred up as they have not been for years. The newspapers of the country "play it big." The whole country is interested.

Is this because the newspapers are giving excessive publicity to a story which especially concerns them? Or because it affords a good excuse for a supreme effort to crush Chicago gangsters? There is doubtless a factor more influential than these, which is felt by almost every newspaper reader, whether consciously or not.

Reporters are a special class, and in many ways a privileged class, because they represent in modern life what official messengers were in olden times.

Messengers, whether on Olympus or among men, were held sacred. If they were slain, their death was avenged. The ancients felt it had to be so, to preserve the sanctity of communication.

Reporters are the modern messengers. They serve newspaper readers, who are the modern monarchs. They make mistakes, but on the whole they serve their masters well. But for them, the public could not know the truth about a thousand important things. Without them this complex modern society could not exist. Without their work, as Thomas Jefferson said long ago, free government could not function.

So their professional sanctity must be maintained, their death in line of duty must be avenged.

MORE JOB SEEKERS

If the market for white-collar jobs seems a little duller during the summer, it must be because nearly half a million college graduates are dumped on the market this month. The June crop takes a little time to place and temporarily clutters up some of the employment bureaus.

On the whole, though, this is said to be one of the easiest groups to place in our economic system. Many students in every graduating class have jobs lined up for them. They are spoken for in far greater numbers than they used to be. There is a special demand now for those who have specialized in certain lines, particularly the technical school men. Merchants, manufacturers and other business men are often on the lookout for likely young men and women. Legal firms comb law schools for promising students. Educational institutions are searching for teachers. And so it goes.

There is a premium on education. College training, which used to be regarded among "practical men" as a sort of liability, is now almost universally recognized as an asset.

There is considerable truth in the obstacles named in the report of the Simon commission which has studied the possibilities of granting self-government to India at the present time. It is true that India's 300,000,000 population is divided by castes and religious differences, making cooperation virtually impossible without a long period of education of the masses and the development of a national spirit. Without the British, India would have no military force to preserve order and home rule.

On the other hand, there remains the ironic fact that the British government presumes to patronize and look after a vast populace who it regards as incompetent to govern itself, in spite of the fact that India was a civilized nation when Britons were still living in caves.

The white races of the world entertain notions of superiority over the dark-skinned races which may or may not be true. Somehow the former groups have got the upper hand physically and materially. The others are in the position of being unable to assert their rights without permission of their oppressors or benefactors, as the case may be.

Logic, economics, politics, and the social adjustments of the Western World seem to favor the "superior" groups, but there are moments when a philosopher or student of human history wonders whether it will be so for long. If it should turn out in the great scheme of things that the white races were not, after all, created to rule the world, there would be a rather tremendous cosmic joke on us.

He was thinking deeply. He well knew Emily's wilful ways, her sudden yielding to a whim, but he didn't think she would forget or ignore the rehearsal of their wedding.

He was not at all angry at her, or even annoyed, but he couldn't quite understand.

Well, at any rate, he could obey orders. She had said, "Don't budge from that sofa until I come back," and nothing short of an irresistible force would make him budge.

Nor was this merely a dogged or slavish obedience to orders.

It was only that Rod loved his Emily so truly and so deeply that he wanted to do as she asked him, now and always.

She was whimsical, wilful, yes, even stubborn; or, as that queer man had put it, "pig-headed," but with it all she was open to conviction and quick to acknowledge her mistakes.

So Rodney sat and mused, and "Best thing, too," he exulted.

"Never mind the matron of honor," he shouted, dancing about in an agony of haste and excitement. "You've got to give the bride away, ain't you? And you've got to have a bride to give away! Well, this is it!"

"Well, then," and Burton Lamb sized up the situation. "Emily took Mrs. Pennington with her over to the hospital to see the new baby, and they've no idea how the time has gone by!"

"That's Emily all over!" declared Nell Harding. "Of course, Burt, you're right. How can anybody be so thoughtless and so careless of other people's convenience?"

"Well," Mr. Spinks said decidedly, "either we put this thing over or we don't. I suggest we go right straight bang through with it, and we'll just have time if we begin at once, and then you folks can coach Miss Duane and Mrs. Pennington in their parts afterward. Like's not they'll come in while we're at it. Hey, Mr. Sayre, come along here. Mr. Garner, you get up there in the bower, will you?"

Burton Lamb went back to the lounge to tell Rodney of the decision, and to his surprise the obdurate bridegroom refused to budge.

"But Rod, you must. And, too, Emily and Mrs. Pennington will know their stunts without rehearsing. But you won't. You don't want to come a cropper at the big show, and you sure will, if you don't get onto the quirks right here and now."

"Emily will tell me just what to do, and I'm not such a stupid that I can't catch on. And if I make a 'terrible break, they'll forgive a clumsy bridegroom."

Rod settled back in the corner of the sofa and lit another cigarette.

"You're a brute," Lamb told Rodney. "I haven't time to argue with you, but as I'm your best man, I've got to get you through somehow, I suppose. All right, I'll do your act myself, and then I can coach you. For Heaven's sake, when Emily comes, shoot over to the drawing-room as fast as you can. You may be in time."

Lamb returned and made up the most plausible yarn he could think of, and advised Spinks to whizz things through.

"You," Spinks said to Aunt Judy, "please stand up here and personate the matron of honor. That's right, a little more to the left. There. Now Miss Maid of Honor, you stand here. Bridesmaid Number One—yes that's right—here take your bunches of flowers," he gave each one of his artificial horrors. "Now, stand on your left foot, ready to advance to the music—hold on, Bob, I haven't stood up the men yet."

The men were duly stood up, Lamb insisting on being bridegroom and saying he could understand that and best man also.

Spinks suddenly found he had no bride!

Betty was determined to get happened, the minister, the whole party went off in peals of laughter. Even this did not bring Rodney Sayre to the scene.

He was thinking deeply. He well knew Emily's wilful ways, her sudden yielding to a whim, but he didn't think she would forget or ignore the rehearsal of their wedding.

He was not at all angry at her, or even annoyed, but he couldn't quite understand.

Folks are disappointed when the great Babe fans but they don't shout "Back to the sandlots!" They know that the cumulative effect of years of coaching and training have brought the mighty slugger to the point where he out-thinks the pitcher more than the pitcher out-thinks him.

As in sport, so in business. A full-page, smashing ad, once in a blue moon, will NEVER overcome public indifference! But neither could a bush leaguer, no matter how strong, knock a famous hurler from his box. Years of tireless hammering at the ball . . . months of continual pounding in the newspaper . . . eventually bring success! Lengthy series of small ads, consistently planned and persistently inserted wears away buyer resistance as the rain of centuries wears away stone.

An advertiser building a business must first lay a foundation of confidence that will support his structure. Numberless ads, joined together with a continuity of appeal and sincerity of message, as bricks are joined together with mortar, make a permanent base on which to rest a tower of Good Will. And the foundation, itself, must rest upon the solid ground of public confidence. Your advertising is grounded in public faith when it uses the medium of The Herald and Union-Herald.

So plan your advertising carefully. We'll help you. Be consistent. And be persistent . . . KEEP SWINGING! One of these days you are going to knock a home run with the bases loaded!

DISSENSION WITHIN RANKS OF HACKMEN BLAMED FOR LOSSES

Wash Says Philadelphia Has Become Prima Donna, the Players Deciding That They Don't Care For Each Other Much.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
NEW YORK, June 18.—Without knowing whether the matter comes under the head of fact or fiction, the writer merely desires to state today that he has heard many vague and disquieting rumors in connection with the recent progress of the world champion Athletics through the middle west. I said progress; I meant masterly inertia. The club won five games in the west, it lost eight. Of the last ten played seven were absolutely kicked away.

BLAME DISSENSION
The answer? Offhand, you might blame the fact that Simmons has been much out of the lineup or that the pitchers couldn't seem to get the side out. I have it on reliable authority that the latter is very important. Anyhow, it is alleged to represent only the effect, not the cause. It is an answer, in other words, but it isn't supposed to be the right one. They say what is officially the best ball club in the world isn't able to win during the quasi-critical period preceding July 4 because it is the victim of discord within the ranks.
The Athletics, they say, have gone prima donna. After many years together, they are said to have decided that they don't care for each other in a big, fine way thus, the hydra-headed monster, known as gossip, has seized upon this ball club and is picking its bones clean of every morsel that might contribute to the feast all of us are inclined to enjoy at the other fellow's expense.

How much of it represents truth or falsity, nobody can say. If it is false, the management will lose no time in denying it very indignantly.
If it is true, the aftermath will be much the same. The management will lose no time in denying it very indignantly.

INDIAN SERIES

Anyhow, the story is that the players have been snarling at each other, both on the field and in the dressing room and that this was particularly evident in the recent series in Cleveland, during which the champions temporarily lost their hold on first place. They blew three straight games there and I would be disposed to regard the reports as mere hearsay. Generated by the indubitable fact that when a winning ball club doesn't win something must be wrong, if the reports weren't colored by allusions to a "dead horse."

The latter, it seems, isn't a problem for them. It is a term of approbrium. I gather, for a ball player who doesn't feel the urge. A man who has decided that the making of an effort on the ball field is evidence of low breeding or something. In any case, the supposition is that when a ball club finds itself with a "dead horse" on its hands, it pitches right in and helps him to do as little as possible.

Possibly even the "dead horse" is so much imagination, for it doesn't seem to be in character for Connie Mack to allow a few punk kids to take the pennant away from him with their idle prattle.
Besides I note the names of McNair, Williams and Cramer, first year men, in the box scores. They are much too young to be able to snarl successfully right away and, by the time they have become veteran snarlers, the pennant ought to be won. Judging by the way some of them are hitting.

Still, there must be some vital reason for the recent failure of a club to which the pennant was conceded by everybody. Maybe that is the trouble. The Athletics may have decided that everybody was absolutely right. The best way to lose something is to accept it before you get it.

SENATORS WIN FROM SAINTS

Jess Doyle Hurls Columbus
Aggregation To 13 To 3
Victory Tuesday.

COLUMBUS, O., June 18.—The Columbus Senators' win over St.
Paul yesterday to the tune of 13 to 3, put the Ohio team a full game and a half ahead of the Apostles and gave them a stronger hold on second place in the American Association standings than they have held thus far this season.

The Bucks were denied a batting practice before yesterday's game due to the late arrival at the Minnesota city of their train which was held up because of a train wreck.
The Senators appeared to be none the worse for the delay, however, and they knocked two St. Paul pitchers for 19 bingles. Doyle held the Saints in check with seven hits.

Louisville, holding strong possession of first place, walloped Kansas City 6 to 2. The Colonels collected the winning score on nine hits.
Joe DeBerry took command for Louisville soon after the Blues gave their pitcher, Max Thomas, a two-run lead in the first inning.

The Milwaukee Brewers opened their long home stay yesterday by defeating Indianapolis, 6 to 2, with the steady pitching of Jack Euveld.
Ambrose pitched well for the Tribe until the seventh when Milwaukee turned six hits into four runs and cinched the game. Connelly of the Indians featured with four straight singles.

Washington fell into a tie with Cleveland for third honors when the Senators lost to the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 9. Goose Goslin, traded by Washington to the Browns for Manush whaled a homer and two other hits.

GEHRIG'S POTENTIAL PUNCH PLACES YANKEES IN CHASE

Columbia-Lou Socks Out 29 Hits For 54 Bases In 12 Games Including Seven Home Runs—Ruth Plays Second Fiddle.

By COPELAND C. BURG
NEW YORK, June 18.—To be great is something, but to be great right in the bosom of a great man's own family—shake hands with the super Mr. Lou Gehrig, the man who "outruthed" Ruth and conquered the seeds of the world's greatest inferiority complex.

The honor and glory of the western trip that today shipped the New York Yankees from nowhere into second place in the American League falls on the muscled shoulders of Lou. In the very shadow of the $80,000 maestro, ignoring his natural destiny of first fiddler, Gehrig hit seven homers on the trip against Babe Ruth's five. He spanked out 29 hits in all for 54 bases in the 12 games and as the Yanks humbled Cleveland in the last of the series yesterday, 17 to 2, Gehrig bagged his 18th homer of the season (with two on), a double and two singles.

Washington fell into a tie with Cleveland for third honors when the Senators lost to the St. Louis
Browns, 12 to 9. Goose Goslin, traded by Washington to the Browns for Manush whaled a

SANTELL AND PESEK PAIRED

Great Clash Between Two Men Won By Pesek Calls For Return Bout.

Wrestling fans throughout the middlewest seemingly are more excited about the return finish wrestling battle between John Pesek and Ad Santell than the first clash between these brilliant American heavyweights a month ago.

Next Wednesday night in Columbus, at Haft's Acre Arena the man who is recognized as "common-law" heavyweight mat champion will meet Santell in a second battle directly culminated out of the spectacular first duel.

Pesek in the past 1.0 years has won more important matches than any heavyweight in the game. In addition, he has attracted nationwide attention with his defies hurled at Jim London, Gus Sonnenberg and Dick Shikat.

The fact that Santell, who owns a win over London and also Pesek, accepted the tigerman's deffe proved the magnet for a turnaway audience. It is estimated that ten thousand fans will see the second match Wednesday.

In the first duel Pesek won after losing a fall to Santell when the westerner set his deadly key-lock hold. Adjudged lucky to grab a win out of the first duel, Pesek is training like a Roman of

YOUNGSTOWN MAN ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT KONJOLA

Tells How Famed Medicine Ended
Eight Years of Suffering—Entire Family Helped.

MR. HOMER BARGER.

"I suffered for eight years without finding a medicine to help me," said Mr. Homer Barger, 650 St. Innis street, Youngstown.
"My kidneys gave me a lot of trouble and sharp pains centered in my back. A weak liver subjected me to frequent dizzy and staggering spells. My stomach brought me up at meals and the pains in that region were very severe. I had pains around my heart and was frequently short of breath."

"In this condition I began taking Konjola and the improvement amazed both me and my family.
The first three bottles helped wonderfully and I eagerly kept on with the treatment. After I had completed the seventh bottle my health troubles were over. I am free from aches and pains and my digestion is as good as it was twenty years ago. My kidneys function perfectly. My entire family has taken this medicine and been benefited."

Konjola is a new and different medicine containing the juices of 22 roots and herbs compounded with other medicinal ingredients.
It works with the sufferer's food, eliminating poisons and restoring normal activity to the weakened organs.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

DISSENSION WITHIN RANKS OF MACKMEN BLAMED FOR LOSSES

Walsh Says Philadelphia Has Become Prima Donna, the Players Deciding That They Don't Care For Each Other Much.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
NEW YORK, June 18.—Without professing to know whether the matter comes under the head of fact or fiction, the writer merely desires to state today that he has heard many vague and disquieting rumors in connection with the recent progress of the world champion Athletics through the middle west. I said progress; I meant masterly inertia. The club won five games in the west; it lost eight. Of the last ten played seven were absolutely kicked away.

BLAME DISSENSION
The answer? Offhand, you might blame the fact that Simmons has been much out of the lineup or that the pitchers couldn't seem to get the side out. I have it on reliable authority that the latter is very important. Anyhow, it is alleged to represent only the effect, not the cause. It is an answer, in other words, but it isn't supposed to be the right one. They say what is officially the best ball club in the world isn't able to win during the quasi-critical period preceding July 4 because it is the victim of discord within the ranks. The Athletics, they say, have gone prima donna. After many years together, they are said to have decided that they don't care for each other in a big, fine way. Thus, the hydra-headed monster, known as gossip, has seized upon this ball club and is picking its bones clean of every morsel that might contribute to the feast all of us are inclined to enjoy at the other fellow's expense.

How much of it represents truth or falsity, nobody can say. If it is false, the management will lose no time in denying it very indignantly. If it is true, the aftermath will be much the same. The management will lose no time in denying it very indignantly.

INDIAN SERIES
Anyhow, the story is that the players have been snarling at each other, both on the field and in the dressing room and that this was particularly evident in the recent series in Cleveland, during which the champions temporarily lost their hold on first place. They blew three straight games there and I would be disposed to regard the reports as mere hearsay. Generated by the indubitable fact that when a winning ball club doesn't win something must be wrong, if the reports weren't colored by allusions to a "dead horse."

The latter, it seems, isn't a problem for them. It is a term of approbrium, I gather, for a ball player who doesn't feel the urge. A man who has decided that the making of an effort on the ball field is evidence of low breeding or something. In any case, the supposition is that when a ball club finds itself with a "dead horse" on its hands, it pitches right in and helps him to do as little as possible.

Possibly even the "dead horse" is so much imagination, for it doesn't seem to be in character for Connie Mack to allow a few punk kids to take the pennant away from him with their idle prattle. Besides I note the names of McNair, Williams and Cramer, first year men, in the box scores. They are much too young to be able to snarl successfully right away and, by the time they have become veteran snarlers, the pennant ought to be won. Judging by the way some of them are hitting.

Still, there must be some vital reason for the recent failure of a club to which the pennant was conceded by everybody. Maybe that is the trouble. The Athletics may have decided that everybody was absolutely right. The best way to lose something is to accept it before you get it.

SENATORS WIN FROM SAINTS

Jess Doyle Hurls Columbus Aggregation To 13 To 3 Victory Tuesday.

COLUMBUS, O., June 18.—The Columbus Senators' win over St. Paul yesterday to the tune of 13 to 3, put the Ohio team a full game and a half ahead of the Apostles and gave them a stronger hold on second place in the American Association standings than they have held thus far this season.

The Bucks were denied a batting practice before yesterday's game due to the late arrival at the Minnesota city of their train which was held up because of a train wreck. The Senators appeared to be none the worse for the delay, however, and they knocked two St. Paul pitchers for 19 bingles. Doyle held the Saints in check with seven hits. Louisville, holding strong possession of first place, wallowed Kansas City 6 to 2. The Colonels collected the winning score on nine hits Kansas City annexed 13 hits. Joe DeBerry took command for Louisville soon after the Blues gave their pitcher, Max Thomas, a two-run lead in the first inning.

The Milwaukee Brewers opened their long home stay yesterday by defeating Indianapolis, 6 to 2, with the steady pitching of Jack Evid. Ambrose pitched well for the Tribe until the seventh when Milwaukee turned six hits into four runs and clinched the game. Connelly of the Indians featured with four straight singles.

GEHRIG'S POTENTIAL PUNCH PLACES YANKEES IN CHASE

Columbia-Lou Socks Out 29 Hits For 54 Bases In 12 Games Including Seven Home Runs—Ruth Plays Second Fiddle.

By COPELAND C. BURG
NEW YORK, June 18.—To be great is something, but to be great right in the bosom of a great man's own family—shake hands with the super Mr. Lou Gehrig, the man who "outrun" Ruth and conquered the seeds of the world's greatest inferiority complex.

The honor and glory of the western trip that today slipped the New York Yankees from nowhere into second place in the American League falls on the muscled shoulders of Lou. In the very shadow of the $80,000 maestro, ignoring his natural destiny of first fiddler, Gehrig hit seven homers on the trip against Babe Ruth's five. He spanked out 29 hits in all for 54 bases in the 12 games and as the Yanks humbled Cleveland in the last of the series yesterday, 17 to 2, Gehrig bagged his 18th homer of the season (with two on), a double and two singles.

Washington fell into a tie with Cleveland for third honors when the Senators lost to the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 9. Goose Goslin, traded by Washington to the Browns for Manush whaled a homer and two other hits.

Fred Frankhouse, just turned over to Boston by the Cardinals, clicked for the Braves as they won a double-header from the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4 and 10 to 5. Frankhouse went to the rescue in the sixth inning of the opener and subdued the Red batsmen. In the tea-time tilt pitcher Rixey failed and McWeeney and Johnson, who succeeded him, were scarcely more effective.

Lefty O'Doul hit a single in the tenth inning to end a pitching duel between Nicholas of the Phillies and French of the Pirates 5 to 4 in Philadelphia's favor.

Three Chicago pitchers were tried and found wanting against the Boston Red Sox, who triumphed 8 to 5. Gaston went the route for Boston.

Chicago and New York, and St. Louis and Brooklyn in the National circuit were rain-swept, while Philadelphia and Detroit in the American were idle.

It is terrible to think of posterity digging up our newspapers and magazines a couple of thousand years from now, and thinking our girls looked in real life the way they do in the style ads.

SANTELL AND PESEK PAIRED

Great Clash Between Two Men Won By Pesek Calls For Return Bout.

Wrestling fans throughout the middlewest seemingly are excited anent the return finish wrestling battle between John Pesek and Ad Santell than the first clash between these brilliant American heavyweights a month ago.

Next Wednesday night in Columbus, at Haft's Acre Arena the man who is recognized as "common-law" heavyweight mat champion will meet Santell in a second battle directly culminated out of the spectacular first duel.

Pesek in the past two years has won more important matches than any heavyweight in the game. In addition, he has attracted nationwide attention with his defies hurled at Jim Londos, Gus Sonnenberg and Dick Shikat.

The fact that Santell, who owns a win over Londos and also Pesek, accepted the tigerman's defiance proved the magnet for a turn-away audience. It is estimated that ten thousand fans will see the second match Wednesday.

In the first duel Pesek won after losing a fall to Santell when the westerner set his deadly key-lock hold. Adjudged lucky to grab a win out of the first the Pesek is training like a Roman of old for the return settee.
